September 12, 2007...ROCKVILLE, MD...Investors seeking the benefits of exchange traded fund investing within a tax-deferred retirement plan now have more options. Rydex Investments today announced the availability of eight ETFs in Invest n Retire (INR) retirement plans. A market leader in using ETFs in qualified accounts, INR provides advanced technology that enables investors to own whole and fractional shares of ETFs in their retirement portfolios without incurring the expense of opening a separate, self-directed brokerage account.

“As investors have become familiar with the benefits offered by exchange traded funds, including affordability and transparency, we’ve seen an overwhelming demand for ETF exposure within qualified accounts,” says Tim Meyer, ETF business manager at Rydex Investments. “We’re pleased to partner with Invest n Retire so that investors now have a cost-effective way to access Rydex ETFs within a tax-deferred retirement plan.”

With over $5 billion in ETF assets under management, Rydex’s lineup of approximately two dozen exchange traded products offers a wide range of investment options, including broad market, style, sector and currency exposures. ## About Invest n Retire, LLC

Invest n Retire, LLC (INR), located in Portland Oregon, was founded in response to the overwhelming demand for leading edge technology that can deliver financial tools and services to 401(k) plans. INR's uniquely designed system (patent pending) for managing tax-deferred retirement plans addresses and solves two major problems: (i) the move from defined benefit, profit sharing, and money purchase plans to defined contribution plans which forces employees to become investment experts and (ii) the high costs associated with the traditional investment options offered to employees.

INR's proprietary system includes asset allocation models designed by the plan's financial consultant, portfolio rebalancing, online enrollment, investment education, daily valuation, and investment options which include an array of exchange-traded funds (ETFs) and Dimensional Fund Advisors institutional index funds.
